QUARANTINE LIFTED

Against Sheep Scabies In Many Counties—Advice to Farmers

Bledsoe Bailey, Sheep Inspector of Lincoln county, has been notified that on May 1, both federal and state quarantine against sheep scabies was removed in all Kentucky counties lying west and south of the Green and Big Horn rivers, those counties having completed the work and eradicated the disease from that section.

The quarantine on the remainder of the State will be removed just as soon as the few remaining infected flocks are properly treated. The Government and State inspectors are co-operating in this work and are making a strong effort to complete the work in the near future.

Sheep owners, farmers and traders can greatly assist in this work and shorten the time for the removal of the quarantine if they will report to the inspectors all existing flocks of infected sheep. Government experts are here in the field and will personally supervise and give assistance to the owners of all diseased sheep in the proper and careful treatment of their flocks. If you have scab on your sheep or know of an infected flock, you are requested to report that fact to either your county inspector or the government inspector and they will give you reliable instructions and help you get rid of this disease.

This time last year there were more than one thousand flocks infected with scabies in Kentucky. At present about eighty flocks are known to be still infected and are being properly treated. But all diseased flocks have not been located, and it is of great importance that such be reported at once so that proper treatment may be given; thus allowing the lambs to be marketed and rendering possible the early removal of the quarantine.

Quite a number of flocks have recently become infected as a result of purchasing sheep from other flocks already diseased. The owners of infected sheep are forbidden by law to dispose or remove from their premises any sheep until cured and written permission is given by the inspector. Persons contemplating buying sheep should first ascertain the condition of the animals desired and secure from the inspector a permit for the removal of the same. By using such precaution, a further spread of the disease will at once stop.

All farmers, sheep owners, buyers, shippers and others interested are urged to request to carefully observe the state's regulations and to give assistance asked. By so doing, this disease will be shortly eradicated and further economic loss to the sheep industry stopped.

Guard Your Children Against Bowel Trouble

Many children at an early age become constipated, and frequently serious consequences result. Not being able to realize his own condition, a child's bowels should be constantly watched, and a gentle laxative given when necessary. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are especially well adapted to women and children. The Sisters of Christian Charity, 531 Charles St., Luzerne, Pa., who attend many cases of sickness say of them:

"Some time ago we began using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and find that we like them very much. Their action is excellent and we are grateful for having been made acquainted with them. We have had good results in every case and the Sisters are very much pleased."

The form and flavor of any medicine is very important, no matter who is to take it. The taste and appearance are especially important when children are concerned. All parents know how hard it is to give the average child "medicine," even though the taste is partially disguised. In using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, however, this difficulty is overcome. The shape of the tablets, their appearance and candy-like taste at once appeal to any child, with the result that they are taken without objection.

The rich chocolate flavor and absence of other taste, make Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets the ideal remedy for children.

If the first box fails to benefit, the price is returned. Ask your druggist. A box of 25 doses costs only 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

IN MEMORIAM

James McElwain Owsley

That death loves a shining mark was never more clearly demonstrated, than when the icy finger was laid upon the noble young form of James McElwain Owsley, and he was summoned to come up higher. The pride and joy of his parents, the hope of his grandparents, who almost idolized him and the beloved favorite of his aunts and uncles, his death comes as a severe blow to his entire family, and has brought the deepest sorrow wherever he was known.

He was the representative of two of Kentucky's oldest and most prominent families and possessed those fine social qualities, and courteous manners, that only come from noble birth.

He had been dedicated by his parents to God in his infancy, and when he was 14 years old, he became converted and joined the Presbyterian church. He was a constant attendant at the Sunday school, receiving a prize at Lexington for being the best Sunday school pupil for a year. He was a dutiful son, a manly, noble youth, with excellent intellect, worthy ambition and such diligent application as gave his parents, teachers and friends assurance of success. His teacher, Col. Best, testified that his high character and personal worth caused him to stand at the very top of his school, and that his bright, happy disposition made him the admiration of all his comrades. Col. Best expected to charter a car, and bring his school friends to Stanford to pay the last tribute of respect to him by attending his burial last Sunday afternoon, but being unable to make railroad connections on Sunday, he came through in an automobile, accompanied by his room mate, Cadet May also Cadet Cash, Capt. Brece, and his physician, at Millersburg, Dr. Smith.

The remains were accompanied from Lexington by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Owsley, Jr., Mr. J. S. Owsley, Sr., Miss Linda Owsley, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bush, Mr. Thomas Owsley and Mrs. Gussie Phillips from Atlanta, a sister of Mrs. Owsley. They were joined at Danville by Mr. and Mrs. Wells and children, Mrs. W. P. Walton, from Louisville, Mr. J. S. McElwain and Dr. Venable from Franklin, were present at the burial. The popularity of the young man was shown to some extent by the immense throng that attended the funeral, and the beautiful and elaborate floral contributions. His life, though short, has not been lived in vain, for life is not reckoned by years, but by the sunshine we scatter in giving pleasure to others. He has "crossed the bar," has seen his Pilot face to face, and now, as a star beckons all his friends and loved ones to the Beautiful land, the Home of the soul. A FRIEND

Murrah for the Methodists

I speak advisedly when I say there are three Methodists to one of all other denominations that vote as they pray. I mean by that, they vote for the only party that declares boldly against the manufacture, sale and transportation of alcoholic beverages. And now comes to the front a Methodist preacher of San Diego, Cal., with a ten thousand dollar donation to the prohibition party national campaign fund. And I guarantee every dollar of it will be accounted for. His name is W. N. Taft. Not the rum raled W. H. Taft. Bless you, No.
